Subject: A question for learning from Covid-19, building better health and better health care

Dear friend and colleague

I have an interesting request for you. Could you please look into your network and see if you can find experiences developed through the time of Covid-19 that would fit the following description.

Six municipalities in a region in Norway have decided to join resources in a project that seeks some answers to the following question:

“Learning for the future – How can positive experiences done during the pandemic influence how we organize the health services and how we deliver services in the future health and care service in the municipalities?”

The project has two intentions:

- Collect and systemize experiences
- Consider what to learn by the experiences for creating future health and care services

The method chosen for this project is a combination of qualitative and quantitative. There will also be done a literature search. If you know of research or books/articles that would be of use, they would be very happy to get links. If you know of any person in your network that would be the right person for this request, please forward this mail.

I strongly believe in the method Appreciative Inquiry and looking for the best experiences and learn from them. Thanks for helping us to find a better tomorrow. Everyone responding to [5.1.2e] will get a shortlisted collection of the most promising experiences. If you speak or understand Scandinavian, look to the original text in yellow below.

Any response can be sent directly to [5.1.2e] @horten.kommune.no

Best regards
